Judge: Hon. James Ware
Date: June 1, 2009
Time: 10:00 a.m.
CtRm: Courtroom 8, 4th Floor

1 In accordance with the Court's May 15, 2009 Order, the parties jointly submit this Case
2 Management Conference Statement.

3 I. PROPOSED CASE SCHEDULE

4 A. Status of Discovery

5 Plaintiffs are proceeding with discovery on their monopoly, attempted monopoly and related
6 state law claims. In light of the Court's May 15, 2009 Order granting in part defendant's motion for 7 judgment on the pleadings, Plaintiffs are considering whether to proceed on a rule-of-reason tying
8 claim theory and intend to have a final decision by the conference. If Plaintiffs elect to proceed with 9 a rule-of-reason tying claim, Apple intends to promptly file a 12(c) motion to dismiss that claim as 10 invited by the Court in its May 15 Order.

11 Recently, Plaintiffs served a Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notice and corresponding document
12 requests concerning software updates and have re-served, with modifications, discovery served
13 before the Court bifurcated certification and merits discovery. The parties have met and conferred
14 on the scope of the 30(b)(6) deposition and Apple will begin producing responsive documents on 15 May 27, 2009. The deposition is currently scheduled for the third week of July.

16 B. Proposed Schedule

17 1. Plaintiffs' Position

18 Plaintiffs propose the following schedule for motions, discovery, and trial:

- 19 (a) Non-expert Discovery Deadline – April 1, 2010;
- 20 (b) Deadline for Taking Fact-Related Depositions – 30 days after the close of 21 non-expert discovery;
- 22 (c) Deadline for Filing Dispositive Motions and Corresponding Memoranda – 60
23 days after the close of non-expert discovery;
- 24 (d) Parties' Simultaneous Exchange of Expert Reports – 60 days after the close of 25 non-expert discovery;
- 26 (e) Deadline for Expert Rebuttal Reports – 30 days after initial expert exchange;
- 27 (f) Deadline for Expert Depositions – 30 days after exchange of expert rebuttal
28 reports;

- (g) Final Pretrial Order – September 1, 2010;
- (h) Final Pretrial Hearing – September 15, 2010; and
- (i) Jury Trial – October 15, 2010.

Plaintiffs disagree with Apple that Plaintiffs should be limited to only the 30(b)(6) discovery prior to a Rule 56 motion on the subject of software updates. Such a motion is only appropriate after all evidence on the claim has been collected. The outstanding 30(b)(6) requests, however, do not reach all aspects of Apple's anticompetitive behavior. Additionally, Plaintiffs have not obtained any discovery from Apple in response to their 30(b)(6) requests and thus, are unable to determine whether additional requests or discovery methods will be necessary. Moreover, deferring all other discovery and the setting of a detailed pretrial schedule will unnecessarily delay the progress and resolution of this case. Accordingly, Plaintiffs' above proposed schedule is appropriate and will assist the parties in moving the case forward.

2. Apple's Position

Apple believes that setting a schedule for discovery, post-discovery motions and trial should be deferred until the disposition of Apple's anticipated dispositive motion against Plaintiffs' remaining claims. Apple intends to move against those claims under Rule 12(c) or Rule 56 on the ground the alleged conduct is not exclusionary or otherwise unlawful. Apple proposes to file its motion following the completion of Plaintiffs' requested Rule 30(b)(6) deposition on the subject of Apple's software updates to its DRM. Apple anticipates that the deposition will occur in July 2009 and thus expects to file its motion by September 1. The Court's ruling on that motion will either resolve the case or likely substantially define the issues for further discovery, motion practice or potential trial. Accordingly, Apple believes that it makes sense to defer further discovery and the setting of a detailed pretrial schedule until after the Court has ruled on the motion and it is known whether any further proceedings are necessary.

If the Court were to set a schedule now, Apple believes that the Plaintiffs' proposed schedule is objectionable and should be revised in the following respects: (1) the deadline for dispositive motions should be after the close of all discovery (including experts), rather than after the close of fact discovery, (2) the exchange of expert reports should be staggered (Plaintiffs' reports, Apple's

1 reports, Plaintiffs' rebuttal reports) rather than simultaneous, and (3) the dates for the final pretrial
2 order and hearing should be triggered beginning at least 90 days from the date on which the
3 dispositive motions are resolved.

4 C. Discovery Limitations

5 The parties agree to coordinate with each other to identify, schedule, and examine witnesses
6 at deposition. The parties agree to work in good faith to determine the schedule of depositions going
7 forward. For good cause shown, the parties may move the Court and seek additional depositions
8 from the Court should they believe in good faith that an additional deposition may provide 9 necessary.

10 1. Specific Limits Proposed by Plaintiffs

11 Plaintiffs propose that the limits on the number of depositions imposed by the Federal Rules
12 of Civil Procedure shall not apply to this matter, subject to the limitations set forth by the Court.
13 Plaintiffs request permission to take 20 depositions. Plaintiffs intend to take a number of depositions
14 pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 30(b)(6) and propose that any 30(b)(6) deposition not count within their 15 20 deposition proposal. Plaintiffs have already served one 30(b)(6) deposition notice concerning 16 software updates and it is unclear at this time how many deponents will be designated. Additionally,
17 Plaintiffs are likely to depose current and former officers and management personnel of Apple.

18 2. Specific Limits Proposed by Apple

19 The Court should limit Plaintiffs to 15 days of deposition, including 30(b)(6) depositions. As 20 Plaintiffs note, they have already served a 30(b)(6) deposition concerning software updates. 30(b)(6)
21 depositions are very onerous on defendants and there is no basis to exclude them from the normal
22 limitations on deposition discovery. Apple's proposal gives Plaintiffs substantially more than the 23 number of deposition days allowed by the Federal Rules and is sufficient.

24 II. CLASS NOTICE

25 With the benefit of the Court's May 15, 2009 ruling on Apple's Rule 12(c) motion with 26 respect to Plaintiffs' tying claim, Plaintiffs are now preparing the substantive content of the class
27 notice and notice plan, which will be submitted to the Court. From discussions at a prior case
28 management conference, Plaintiffs understand that the Court prefers a joint class notice, notifying

1 direct and indirect purchaser classes of the pending litigation in the same notice, in order to avoid
2 confusion. Plaintiffs agree that a joint notice is appropriate. Accordingly, Plaintiffs will wait for the 3 indirect purchaser class certification order and will, as appropriate, consult with counsel for the 4 indirect purchaser Plaintiffs on the notice content and notice plan. Apple concurs that a decision
5 about the content of the class notice should be deferred at this time.
